DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(c), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(c) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 12/4/2009 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-20 and 29-51 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 29-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent Number 5,848,064 to Cowan.

See the mapping of claim 1 below. The content disclosed is the types of media claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-14, 18-19, 34-39, 41-47, and 49-51 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent Number 5,848,064 to Cowan in view of U.S. Patent Number 7,117,482 to Nguyen et al.

As to claim 1, Cowan teaches a version based content distribution system comprising: content comprising a version number (col. 2, lines 37-55); a syndicator, wherein the syndicator is configured to transmit the version number (col. 2, lines 37-55); a subscriber content comprising a subscriber version number (col. 2, lines 37-55); a subscriber configured to store the subscriber content, to compare the version number with the subscriber content version number, and to receive the content from the syndicator if the version number is different from the subscriber content version number (col. 2, lines 37-55); however Cowan does not explicitly teach the comparison determining which version is larger.

Nguyen teaches a method for comparing software version number by determining which number is larger (See Abstract).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the Computer Networking art at the time of the invention to combine the teachings of Cowan regarding subscriber version management with the teachings of Nguyen regarding comparing the size of version numbers because Nguyen provides a specific example of the broad comparison method discussed by Cowan. One of ordinary skill in the art would be able to compare numbers to determine which one is greater.

As to claim 2, Cowan downloads from a server.

As to claim 3, Cowan teaches a display.

As to claim 4-6 and 37-39, Cowan teaches a mobile device which is broad enough to cover a PDA.

As to claim 7, Cowan teaches a "predetermined transfer method" as claimed.

As to claim 8-10, the transfer in Cowan is considered application driven, isochronous, and one way.

As to claim 11, Cowan uses a network so one of ordinary skill would recognize the use of an "IP method" as broadly claimed.

As to claim 12, In Cowan the user controls what is downloaded. This is considered a preference.

As to claims 13-14, these features are inherent to a web server.

As to claims 18-19, they are rejected for the same reasoning as claims 32-33.

As to claim 34, it rejected for the same reasoning as claim 1.

Claims 35 and its dependents are rejected for the same reasoning as claim 1 and its dependents.

Claims 44-47 and 49-51 are rejected for similar reasoning.

Claims 15-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent Number 5,848,064 to Cowan in view of U.S. Patent Number 6,990,498 to Fenton et al.

As to claims 15-17, Cowan teaches claim 1; however Cowan does not discuss the use of a tree structure.

Fenton teaches the tree structure claimed in claims 15-17 (See Abstract for example).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the Computer Networking art at the time of the invention to combine the teachings of Cowan regarding the distribution of content by comparing version numbers with the teachings of Fenton regarding a tree structure because a tree structure is an efficient method for providing data to users.

Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent Number 5,848,064 to Cowan in view of U.S. Patent Number 6,119,165 to Li et al.

As to claim 20, Cowan makes obvious claim 1; however Cowan does not explicitly teach a proxy as claimed in claim 20.

Li teaches a proxy as claimed in claim 20.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the Computer Networking art at the time of the invention to combine the teachings of Cowan regarding the distribution of content by comparing version numbers with the teachings of Li regarding using a proxy in a separate computer because a proxy allows a client to access the internet using a singular portal (Background of Li).

Claims 31, 40, and 48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent Number 5,848,064 to Cowan in view of U.S. Patent Application Publication Number 2001/0042073 by Saether et al.

As to claim 31, Cowan anticipates claim 29; however Cowan does not teach a version identifier comprising a date and time stamp.

Saether teaches a version identifier comprising a time stamp (paragraph 50).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the Computer Networking art at the time of the invention to combine the teachings of Cowan regarding the distribution of content by comparing version numbers with the teachings of Saether regarding version comprised of time stamps because time stamps are one possible specific implementation of the broad disclosure on version numbers provided by Cowan.
